

APPEAL FOR VISITORS SEEMS DISREGARDED

Invitation to Inspect Infirmary is Not Generally Accepted—Buildings Loom as Monuments to Extravagant Expenditure—Are Either Unnecessary or Too Costly.

The almost frantic appeal made by the county commissioners and infirmary directors to the tax payers of the county that they visit the county infirmary sometime between the present and election day to see for themselves how their money has been spent, has, so far, not been answered by very many citizens. The number of visitors has not greatly increased and the majority of those who do call at the institution go there to visit with friends or relatives who are wards of the county.

Yesterday was the regular day for visitors and the number who took advantage of this fact did not exceed two score, according to a member of Superintendent Drukenbrod's family. In the afternoon there were very few who called and none of the commissioners or directors were on hand to point out to them the great improvements that have been made. They may have been at the races. Visitors were escorted through the buildings the dancers at the infirmary will ever be excluded from their ball room.

Thus this building, which cost more than $30,000, according to figures from the office of the county auditor, is not in use with the exception of the first floor. The kitchen is probably a necessity but one half of the space given to the dining hall would easily accommodate all the inmates now at the institution and probably all who are likely to be there during the winter months when the number is perhaps a third greater. The remainder of the building is being put to absolutely no use and so far as can be seen is absolutely unnecessary now and will not be necessary for years, if ever.

The new barn, built at a cost of more than $7000, was also visited. Just where the money went is hard to see. The frame work is nothing better than the average farmer, who has to watch the pennies, would put in his barn, and the siding is not so by members of the superintendent's family and went to a route that seems to be regularly followed.

The fact about the institution that seems to stand out most prominently is that there is much room not needed. In fact there are thousands of feet of floor space which at present are not put to any use. The greater part of this, too, is in the new building which contains the dining hall and kitchen and the average visitor will no doubt wonder just why this building was erected.

The main building is fairly well filled yet the sleeping wards have room for many more beds than they now contain. There is more available space in the building formerly used to house the insane inmates and it was said that this will be used as a dormitory for the old men who are inmates of the institution. At present many of them sleep in an old building to the south of the pest house. A room will also be arranged for them to sit and read in in the basement of the main building and it is not likely that any of the space in the new building will be needed for sleeping quarters for some time to come.

A trip through the new building showed that it was built on a plan where expense was not considered. The floors are a mixture of cement and stone, well laid and polished, that gives it the appearance of mosaic. Lining the lower part of the walls is a wainscoting of enameled brick, which cost $65 a thousand at the infirmary. Above this is the painted plaster wall and the ceilings are finished with stamped steel plates. The main floor, exclusive of the kitchen, is used for a dining hall and is divided into two great rooms by movable partitions of highly finished oak, which from their appearance must have been about as expensive a partition as could have been put in. Then the windows are equipped with the favorite Chamberlain weatherstrip, which from the price paid by the county might be made of some precious metal.

There is no question but that the dining hall is splendidly finished for an institution of this kind and the plain deal tables, innocent of cloth, and laid with the commonest of table ware stand in strange contrast to the rooms.

On the second floor of this building is a large, well finished room, with a hardwood floor which is now used as a dance hall. Although the majority of the inmates are aged and decrepit, blind or lame, the dance hall is deemed a necessity by the commissioners and directors and so this room, which may have been planned as a dormitory, will be used as a place to trip the light fantastic as there is little chance that it will ever be needed for any other purpose. This floor also contains a number of bath and toilet rooms and one or two rooms that will be used as sleeping apartments by some of the employees of the institution.

On the third floor is the attic. It was said yesterday that this would be used as a sleeping apartment and that until this was filled to overflowing the room now used as a ball room would not be made into a dormitory. With the great attic, which is finished throughout in hard pine, and the space which will be found in the old insane hospital it is not likely that good as many of them use. The flooring in the mows is also of an ordinary grade of lumber and the masonry, or that part of it which is visible, is most ordinary. In fact, the building would probably not pass a close inspection by a competent man. It was noticed in the basement yesterday that many supports had been put under the floor joisting and they were put in in such a manner as to lead one to believe the work was done after the floor had been laid on the foundations and perhaps had begun to sag a little.

The basement of this barn is floored with cement which was left in a rough and uneven condition. There is very little here to show for the money expended besides the flooring and a few stalls which should have cost but a few dollars. The upper floor is devoted entirely to mow space, with the exception of that taken by the straw shed. It is indeed hard to see where the money went from appearances the amount of the contract, a little over $6000, should have been enough without the $1000 for extras which was paid out and from which that $200 forfeit money was not deducted.

Take the improvements from start to finish and the impression comes and grows stronger that all of them are more expensive than should have been and that only part are necessary. There is no question about the barn. It was needed but it is an open question if the same structure should not have been built for at least $5000, and probably considerably less. As to the new dining hall and kitchen the matter of expense also strikes one strongly and the question of whether the building was really needed or not comes up at every turn. At present there are a few more than 200 inmates at the infirmary. Last winter the high water mark was 303 and it is not likely that many more, if any, will be found there this winter. To house and care for this number it is certain the new building was not necessary. But the money was available and the commissioners and directors probably thought it would be a good thing to put it in circulation and went about it in a manner which is well illustrated by the remark of a county official, one of the court house ring. When asked some weeks ago how much the infirmary barn was likely to cost he laughed and said: "As much as they can pile on, I suppose." From appearances he spoke the truth.

ATWATER.

Atwater, Sept. 4.—Harry Fox has rented the Clay Rockhill farm for the coming year. He will move thereon in the spring.

Jacob Petre, Sr., while milking, Sunday morning, was taken with a congestive chill and had another Monday. He is threatened with pneumonia.

Bert Kelley, son of L. G. Kelley, is to be married today to Miss Tannehill, of Alliance.

The Atwater home coming celebration, Tuesday, was a success. A large crowd estimated at from 700 to 800 attended. The Atwater baseball club got the spirit of the occasion early in the day and defeated the Edinburg bunch, 13 to 2. Harry Fox did the bending and "Slip" Roath the receiving act. The Randolph band made the outdoor music and an orchestra from the same quarter the indoor melody. The exercises in the M. E. church were opened at 1 o'clock with an address of welcome by William McD. Stone, who made a hit. Rev. N. W. Stroup, of Cleveland, born here, responded. H. H. Woolf gave a history of Atwater. Mayor Voorhees sang a song. Mrs. Voorhees made a few good points and gave interesting reminiscences. Rev. Webster, as chairman, jollied the crowd pleasantly. Fully 500 were in the church and many couldn't get in. Over 300 were fed a chicken dinner at noon by the ladies, whereby over 30 fowls of the barnyard lost their heads.

Many more were fed at supper by the Men's league, in all netting considerably over $100 to the good of the M. E. church. The concert in the evening was well attended.

The Marlboro Grange were guests of H. W. Reeder and wife, of Marlboro, Wednesday. An elaborate three course dinner was served at noon, after which there was business followed by a literary program. Mrs. Charles Hamilton lectured. Mrs. H. W. Reeder gave the conundrum, "Why don't the man in the moon give his wife any money?" All hands gave it up. The answer is, "Because he has but four quarters and needs them all to get full on." Miss Mary Ed Miller recited "The Modern Belle." Sol Wilhelm told how the Ohio Experimental Station at Wooster benefits the farmer if he avails himself of their bulletins. Harry Reeder told how to prevent disease germs in our water supply. S. Wilhelm thought horse racing necessary to the success of country fairs, as did Grant Shoop and others. Mrs. William Pennock, Miss Logue and others thought not. Mrs. George Reider thought every farmer and his wife should attend the state fair. I. B. Bryan told to what extent the grange had encouraged sociability among the people.

The Pomona Grange, a sort of 32d degree of the order, meets at I. B. Bryan's, with the overflow for Charles Hamilton, of New Baltimore, on Saturday, September 5. They will be the guests of the Marlboro Grange, who will feed them under a big tent, with a five piece orchestra accompaniment. A program, literary and musical, will follow.

COURT HOUSE

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1908.

FOURTH DIVIDEND.

The fourth dividend to the creditors of the Canton State bank, which closed its doors May, 1905, was granted yesterday morning by Common Pleas Judge Ambler. Attorneys Lynch & Day, representing Receivers Wyle & Barbour, of the defunct bank, made the application for the dividend. The creditors will receive a payment of 10 per cent on their claims in compliance with the decree of the court, which makes it the fourth dividend, the three previous ones amounting to 20 per cent. The first dividend was made in December, 1905, while the third was paid about six months ago.

Judge Henry A. Wise, one of the receivers, said yesterday: "We are ready to pay the latest dividend immediately and I think that at least 75 per cent of the creditors' claims on the bank will be paid. Affairs have been progressing smoothly and the total amount may reach 80 per cent." The receivers have been instructed by Judge Ambler to pay the dividends to the creditors out of the moneys they now have in their possession, subject to the orders and judgments which the court has heretofore made, touching on the amounts or validity of the claims; furthermore the dividend is subject, the entry declares, to the restrictions and conditions which governed other dividends.
